

Ploughshares is an award-winning journal of new writing. Two out of each year's four issues are guest-edited by prominent writers, the Fall and Winter issues are staff-edited.

Since 1971, Ploughshares has discovered and cultivated the freshest voices in contemporary American literature, and remains prescient in the digital age by providing readers with thoughtful and entertaining literature in a variety of formats.

Find out why The New York Times named Ploughshares

“THE TRITON AMONG MINNOWS”

SUBMISSION GUIDELINES

We accept submissions via mail or to our submission manager, which can be found, along with full submission instructions, at www.pshares.org/submit.

Submissions for prose, longform prose, and poetry, are open until January 15th.